From Goodreads: "While appraising the estate of a New Hampshire family descended from a North Dakota Indian agent, Faye Travers is startled to discover a rare moose skin and cedar drum fashioned long ago by an Ojibwe artisan. And so begins an illuminating journey both backward and forward in time, following the strange passage of a powerful yet delicate instrument, and revealing the extraordinary lives it has touched and defined."

Books will be available at MainStreet BookEnds of Warner at a 20% discount for BookGroup participants.

Come earlier to tour the museum if you wish (admission charges apply). The book discussion is free and open to all. In the event that government guidelines dictate that we cannot be open, we will do the event virtually via Zoom.
